

BUILDING AN FTP CLIENT APPLICATION BASED ON THE FTP FILE TRANSFER PROTOCOL

nan

Abstract: Along with the achievements of human science, the success of information technology, with its two main fields of computer science and telecommunications, has been developing at an ever-increasing pace. Technological improvements have significantly reduced the cost of computer products. Computer networks have been increasingly developed and are becoming widespread. Today, through communication networks, computer networks have been linked together into larger networks, making the exchange of data, sharing of resources, application software, and so on much easier.
