

Internship & Job Management System for Students

Dang Thanh Duyen

Abstract: This topic aims to propose and build an internship and employment management system for students with the goal of helping training organizations improve educational quality through effective connection between academia and the labor market. The research is based on a comprehensive approach, including analysis of current needs, system design, and practical pilot deployment. The expected results will contribute to the sustainable development of the human resource training sector by enhancing students' job readiness.

Keywords: Management system, Student internship, Employment, Applied research, Human resource training