

Predicting diabetes risk based on health examination data using Machine Learning.

Nguyen Xuan An

Abstract: This topic proposes using Machine Learning to develop a system for predicting the risk of diabetes from medical information. The goal is to build and train a model to improve disease detection in the community. The approach includes data collection, processing, and using Machine Learning algorithms to optimize prediction results.

Keywords: Machine Learning, diabetes, medical data analysis