

Research on the problem of Vietnamese legal text classification

Ngo Thi Hong Ngoc

Abstract: In the context of an increasing volume of legal information being released, automating the classification of legal texts has become necessary to enhance management and search efficiency. This project aims to build a Vietnamese legal text classification system based on modern machine learning models. Through theoretical research combined with experimentation, the project hopes to contribute a solution that can be widely applied in judicial agencies and enterprises involved in regulatory document management.

Keywords: Text classification, Vietnamese law, Machine learning, NLP, Document management