

Developing a Document Management Website for Phuong Dong Investment and Development Joint Stock Company.

Phung Xuan Huy

Abstract: This topic focuses on developing an online record management system to meet the need for improving the operational efficiency of human resources departments at Phuong Dong Investment and Development Joint Stock Company. Through research and practical analysis of the current record management process, the topic applies a combined approach between human resource management theory and experimental website development for record management. The objective of the topic is to create a secure and convenient digital platform for storing, accessing, and managing employee record information. Thereby, the project expects to enhance work performance while minimizing the operational costs of the traditional record system.

Keywords: Website management, Human resource management, Digital technology, Requirements analysis, Application development