

Developing an online phone sales software system for 888 Store

Tran Quoc Khanh

Abstract: This topic aims to solve the problem of improving online business efficiency for 888 Store by developing an online sales software system. Through theoretical research on e-commerce and practical application development, the topic provides a comprehensive solution for the store, from user interface design to order processing procedures. The expected results will contribute to boosting revenue for 888 Store while enhancing customer experience.

Keywords: Software development, E-commerce, Online retail, Sales management system, Order control