

Building a personnel management program for HLM company.

Nguyen Ngoc Lan

Abstract: In the context of increasingly complex human resource management at HLM Company, this topic aims to solve the problem of optimizing recruitment and training processes. Through theoretical research on human resource management combined with the implementation of practical applications, we will build an effective human resource management system. The project not only provides modern technical solutions but also contributes to enhancing the capabilities and meeting the needs of the workforce, thereby promoting the sustainable development of the company.

Keywords: Human resources management, Information technology, Recruitment, Training, Business