

Design a calendar set about Japanese festivals and culture.

Ma Thi Hue

Abstract: In the context of increasing understanding and respect for different cultures around the world, this topic focuses on designing a calendar of Japanese festivals and culture. The objective of the research is to provide a unique educational tool aimed at conveying detailed and memorable information about Japanese rituals and customs throughout each day of the year. The approach combines theoretical and empirical analysis, including data collection from various authoritative sources and the implementation of the application into a digital calendar. The expected outcome is to create an educational product that is not only visually appealing but also highly academic, making a significant contribution to the understanding of Japanese culture within the community.
