

Build a reservation and drink ordering website for An Cafe.

Ngo Anh Tuan

Abstract: In the context of increasing demand for online services, this project aims to build a web system integrating reservation and drink ordering functions for An Cafe. Through theoretical research on web development and practical application deployment, the project hopes to provide a technical solution to optimize the customer service process at the cafe. The final result not only reflects an effective combination of professional knowledge and programming skills but also makes a significant contribution to improving the service management system of An Cafe.

Keywords: Web development, online booking, coffee shop, mobile application, service management