

Building a website to sell precious medicinal herbs and specialties from the Northwest region.

Hoang Van Manh

Abstract: In the context of the increasing demand for learning about and purchasing precious medicinal herbs and specialties from the Northwest region, this topic focuses on building a website to provide detailed information about various types of medicinal herbs. The project aims to create a convenient online system that allows users to easily shop and learn knowledge about medicinal herb products. The research method combines data collection from real sources and website application deployment. The expected outcome of the project is a flexible digital platform that enhances community awareness of the medical value of precious medicinal herbs, contributing to the preservation of traditional culture and the development of local businesses.
