

Building a personal goal management application on mobile phones.

Khuất Đình Trọng

Abstract: In the context of modern life with an increasingly fast pace of work and study, managing personal goals has become more essential than ever. This topic proposes building a mobile application to support users in tracking and achieving their goals. Through systematic research and experimental implementation, the application will help improve work and personal life performance. The expected results will contribute significantly to the field of educational information technology.

Keywords: Mobile application, Goal management, Educational information technology