

Build payment module for the Dock Management program.

Do Hoang Anh

Abstract: The study proposes building a payment module to enhance management efficiency at bus stations. The project focuses on analyzing requirements and designing a system that meets passengers' diverse payment needs while optimizing service processes at the station. The approach is based on current status research, practical evaluation, and pilot model implementation. The expected outcome is a technological solution that improves service experience and strengthens business operation management.

Keywords: Bus station management, Payment module, Information technology, Management system, Software engineering