

Building a financial analysis program based on profitability indicators for Hitech Information Technology Development and Application Company Limited, Thanh Hoa

Nguyen Thi Kim Lien

Abstract: This topic focuses on building a financial analysis program to evaluate the business performance of limited liability companies through the use of profitability indicators. This project aims to meet the practical requirements in financial management and supervision of technology companies, especially Hitech in Thanh Hoa. Through theoretical research combined with experimental implementation, the topic aims to build a robust financial analysis system suitable for business practices. The expected results of this project will significantly contribute to improving financial management capacity and enhancing competitiveness for companies in the information technology sector.

Keywords: financial analysis program, profitability index, financial management, information technology, Hitech