

Building a population management program at the People's Committee of Dong Thinh Commune, Yen Lap District, Phu Tho Province.

Dinh Thi Thanh Huyen

Abstract: In the context of increasingly complex and high-efficiency population management, this topic focuses on building a population management program for the People's Committee of Dong Thinh Commune. The objective of the topic is to identify technical requirements and design an optimal population information management system. The research methodology includes analyzing the current situation, comparing with existing population management models, and conducting experimental implementation at the local level. The expected results contribute to enhancing the management capacity and community service of the commune government, thereby affirming the applicability and practical value of the topic.

Keywords: Population management, Management program, Dong Thinh Commune People's Committee