

Building a program for the accounting subsystem of raw materials at Song Da 505 Joint Stock Company, Hanoi.

Vu Thi Van Anh

Abstract: In the process of financial management of enterprises, monitoring and controlling raw materials is an important aspect. This topic focuses on building a raw material accounting subsystem at Song Da 505 Hanoi Joint Stock Company with the aim of optimizing capital management and improving the efficiency of raw material usage. Through theoretical research on financial management and empirical application, this topic not only solves the specific problem of the enterprise but also contributes to the development of automated accounting systems in the future. The expected results will bring practical benefits to the company and hold significant importance for the field of financial management.

Keywords: Financial management, raw materials, accounting system