

Building an application to promote tourist attractions in Thai Nguyen province on the Android operating system.

Nguyen Van Cuong

Abstract: In the context of the increasing development of the tourism industry in Thai Nguyen province, it is necessary to build a mobile application to effectively promote tourist destinations. The objective of the project is to develop a tourism information system based on the Android platform to provide detailed information about attractions, accompanying services, and user reviews. Through a combination of theoretical research and experimentation, the project hopes to contribute a useful solution to the local tourism industry, raising awareness of Thai Nguyen province's tourism potential within the broader community.
