

Research on congestion control methods in NGN networks

Luu Trong Luan

Abstract: This topic aims to study and evaluate effective congestion control methods in Next Generation Network (NGN) to improve quality of service. By combining theoretical research with experimentation, the topic identifies strategies for optimizing traffic and minimizing user waiting time. The research results are expected to contribute to enhancing network performance and meeting the growing demand for multimedia services.

Keywords: Next Generation Network, congestion control, Next Generation Services