

Design of automatic lighting system

Nguyen Manh Cuong

Abstract: Research and design of an automatic lighting system to optimize energy and ensure light quality in public areas. The topic focuses on analyzing practical requirements, determining appropriate technical standards, and implementing smart solutions based on sensors and automatic control systems. Through practical testing, the topic aims to provide a design model that can be widely applied to enhance urban lighting performance.

Keywords: Automatic lighting, smart sensors, energy saving